

Legal Assistant/Paralegal Program Includes Access to LexisNexis®

Get access to the largest public records collection on the Web and learn to use the same tools used in legal offices throughout the country with your LexisNexis® student membership, included in your program tuition. You will gain real-world experience conducting online legal research during your 4-month membership! The start of your LexisNexis® membership will coincide with the beginning of your legal research and writing studies, Volume XI.

LexisNexis® is the leading online legal, news and business information service and a one-stop resource for paralegals and lawyers who need fast and accurate information. With a student membership, you will be able to practice the research skills you'll need to perform in the workplace, including gathering relevant case law and using Shepard's® Citations Service. Thorough training, including web seminars, an online tutorial, and individual search assistance, is provided.

Explore the possibilities!

As a paralegal, you may be asked to:

- Perform initial case analysis
- Research various legal topics
- Draft legal documents
- Use public records and news sources to compile information

To accomplish these tasks, you'll need to be familiar with an online legal research database. Learn to find the information you need quickly and easily with LexisNexis®:

Speed your research with Lexis® Search Advisor. One click pulls together relevant case law, treatises, law reviews and legal news for your topic.

Find relevant cases with easy-to-read LexisNexis® Case Summaries. Quickly and efficiently review the case's procedural history, overview of the court's holdings, and the outcome in the procedural posture.

Check out the main points of law with LexisNexis® Headnotes. Then review cases, analytical materials, or legal news relevant to the Headnote with Lexis Search Advisor.

Is your case still good law? Validate the authority of your case or statute with Shepard's® Citations Service.
