

Pharmacy Technician PROGRAM

Blackstone Career Institute's distance learning programs enable you to learn a new career at your own pace without disrupting your present job or lifestyle. Upon completion, you will have a Pharmacy Technician diploma, along with the skills and confidence necessary to obtain employment in one of the fastest growing career fields.

The Job of the Future

The demand for pharmacy technicians is expected to increase in the future, reflecting the rapid growth in the healthcare industry due to a population that is increasing in number as well as climbing in age. The number of prescriptions ordered by physicians will rise as the number of middle-aged and elderly patients, who use more prescription medications, increases.

Why Choose Pharmacy Technician

The Career

The pharmacy technician's job is to work under the supervision of a pharmacist to provide pharmaceutical care. Technician duties vary from state to state, but may include computer entry of patient data; preparation of insurance claim forms; medication preparation/mixing, selection, counting and labeling; and ordering, receiving and stocking inventory. In some pharmacy settings, such as a hospital, technicians may review patient charts, prepare and deliver medications to nursing stations, and prepare products such as IV antibiotics.

Job Opportunities

Pharmacy technicians work in a variety of pharmacy settings, including hospitals, nursing homes, assisted-living facilities, independently owned pharmacies, drugstore chains, grocery stores, mass retailers, Internet pharmacies, mail-order pharmacies, physicians' offices, correctional institutions and pharmaceutical wholesalers.

Employment Outlook

Pharmacy technician is a growing field with great employment prospects for accurate and efficient workers. A skilled pharmacy technician can find employment in a health-system or retail pharmacy. According to the U.S. Department of Labor, the number of pharmacy technicians employed in the United States is expected to grow up to 12% by 2026. (U.S. Dept. of Labor Statistics, 2016-2017 Occupational Outlook Handbook)

What You Can Earn

The U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor and Statistics lists the middle 50 percent of pharmacy technicians earning up to $30,920. The top 10 percent of pharmacy technicians earned more than $45,710. Working for a general medical or surgical hospital results in higher average earnings.

Certification

Students who graduate from Blackstone's Pharmacy Technician program are qualified to sit for the Exam for the Certification of Pharmacy Technicians (ExCPT) sponsored by the National Healthcareer Association (NHA), and the Pharmacy Technician Certification Exam (PTCE) offered by the Pharmacy Technician Certification Board. Certification provides further assurance of skills and knowledge to employers. Applicants for either exam must be 18 years of age or older, possess a high school diploma or G.E.D., and not have been convicted of a felony. Prospective students should check with their State Board of Pharmacy regarding specific state regulations concerning licensure, registration and certification requirements.
